

OregonLive.com

FOODday > Small Bites

November 15, 2010

WHAT WE'RE LOVING

Cranberry Orchard Medley

We love seeing more products made with Oregon coast cranberries on local store shelves (we can't keep our hands off FOODday's stash of plump Vincent Family dried cranberries). So count us as fans of Truitt Brothers' Cranberry Orchard Medley, two cups of ready-to-serve cranberry compote packed into a shelf-stable plastic pouch. We love that the berries come from Clearwater Cranberries on Oregon's south coast, and that the compote is made just down the road in Salem. Besides that, the certified-sustainable blend of cranberries, apples, oranges and sugar -- and no preservatives -- tastes bright and fresh, like what we would make if we weren't spending so much time on Twitter. It's a worthy addition to our morning yogurt and weekend pancakes, our Thanksgiving table and the sandwiches that follow. $3.99 for 16 ounces, sold in the produce department at Ray's Food Place, New Seasons Markets and C&K Markets.

-- Leslie Cole

